Play Dough and Fine Motor Skills Development

Let's start with an easy to make recipe so you can make your own playdough:

Basic Play Dough recipe

- 1 cup white flour
- 1/2 cup salt
- 2 tablespoons cream of tartar
- 1 tablespoon oil
- 1 cup water
- Food coloring

Combine dry ingredients in a medium-size pan. Mix well. Add water, oil and food coloring if desired. Mix well. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly for several minutes. Mixture will thicken and begin to clump. Continuing stirring until large clump forms. Remove from heat. Allow to cool enough to handle. Knead dough for several minutes or until texture is smooth and consistent. Store in sealed plastic container or bag.

Benefits of playdough:

While children are busy rolling, poking and squishing dough, they are building strength in the little muscles in their fingers and hands. These same muscles are used for later skills such as cutting and holding a pencil with a pincer grasp.

Children are also learning hand-eye coordination as they use their hands to shape play dough. Each different way children shape play dough—pushing, pulling, squashing, squeezing, rolling, chopping, cutting—builds fine motor development in a different way.

Things to consider:

- ✓ Let your child take the lid off of the playdough and put it back on.
- ✓ Use cookie cutters to make shapes
- ✓ Use a rolling pin to flatten, or pressure from their little hand
- ✓ Pinch the playdough
- ✓ Roll it in a ball in their little hand
- ✓ Use small child safe scissors and cut the playdough into pieces
- ✓ Poke things like macaroni noodles or spaghetti into the playdough
- ✓ Join in the play with your child
- ✓ Most importantly, have fun!!
